Bruins Public Health Club	Bruins Public Health Club engages in projects that promote the maintenance and improvement of health for all members of society. It is the organization's objective to provide members with real-world experiences regarding public health studies so that they may use the knowledge, skills, and leadership gained to make a valuable impact in their communities. We expose members to the wide breadth of the public health field through guest speakers. Additionally, we network with UCLA students to discuss current public health issues. Outside of the UCLA community, we outreach to increase public health awareness and educate the LA community.	https://www.bruinspublichealthclub.org	bruinspublichealth@gmail.com	Instagram - @bruinspublichealth

Global Development Lab at UCLA	At UCLA, students are presented with various academic avenues to explore the theoretical basis behind poverty, development, and globalization. However, the path to knowledge ends at theory, wherein there exists no place for students to translate their theoretical knowledge base into practical action. Global Development Lab at UCLA endeavors to provide a results-driven space for students to research, incubate, and implement innovative ideas that generate social impact. Through professionally-led workshops, internship placements, research projects, and development model experimentation, GDL equips students with the tangible skills and resources necessary to successfully foster responsible global development initiatives.	https://thedeveloplab.org/	devlabucla@gmail.com	Instagram - @devlab_ucla
Global Medical Brigades	The UCLA Chapter of Global Brigades is a student-led group that supports Global Brigades in the implementation of a holistic model to meet the health and economic goals of rural communities in countries around the world. Our Global Medical Brigades chapter participates in yearly recruitment, fundraising, and advocacy events that ultimately culminates to a 7-9 day brigade. During this trip, we dedicate our time to assisting Global Brigades' established international clinics with patient care, learning about the specific global health challenges of the region, and so much more.	https://community.ucla.edu/studentorg/5617	medicalbrigadesucla@gmail.com	Instagram - @medicalbrigadesucla
GlobeMed at UCLA	Founded in 2008, GlobeMed at UCLA advocates for global health equity through its partnership with the Mpoma Community HIV /AIDS Initiative, located in south-central Uganda. Together, we work to improve water access, sanitation and hygiene (WASH) in Mpoma while promoting accessible health/sexual education (Sanitary Pad Project). On campus, our seven committees drive sustainable change within global health through raising awareness about anti-oppressive global health practices and fundraising to support our partner's projects	https://globemedat UCLA.wordpress.com/	ucla@globemed.org	Instagram - @globemedat UCLA
HOSA Future Health Professionals @ UCLA	HOSA @ UCLA is chapter of HOSA- Future Health Professionals, an international student led organization. The mission of HOSA is to empower HOSA-Future Health Professionals to become leaders in the global health community through education, collaboration, and experience. Medical Aid Initiative	The Medical Aid Initiative is a student-founded organization that provides resources to organizations that share the same vision of providing free medical care and health education to both domestic and international communities. Through our partnership with UCLA Health, MAI collects excess medical supplies for use in global health missions. Since U.S. hospitals produce over two million tons of medical waste each year, MAI helps to reallocate usable medical supplies to where they are needed. MAI's mission is to increase sustainability in healthcare, distribute medical supplies to global communities, and increase awareness around the issue of medical waste. Over the last five years, MAI has been able to divert nearly 8,000 pounds of waste from landfills and donated over $450,000 worth of supplies to medical aid organizations around the world.	https://www.maiatucla.org/	maiatucla@gmail.com	Instagram - @maiatucla
SWANA AT UCLA	The Southwest Asian/North African (S.W.A.N.A.) Health Alliance at UCLA is committed to cultivating a diverse and inclusive community of aspiring health professionals with a focus on the S.W.A.N.A. region. The alliance strives to promote academic excellence, provide comprehensive pre-health guidance, and encourage a shared dedication to service. Through mentorship, collaboration, and a commitment to improving health outcomes, members are empowered to make a meaningful impact in both local and global health initiatives related to the S.W.A.N.A. community. Our mission is to bring together students who are interested in health studies and in supporting the underrepresented Southwest Asian/North African (S.W.A.N.A.) communities, both on and off-campus. By spearheading initiatives that highlight important issues in this region, we aim to educate and engage the campus community, creating well-informed advocates for the health and well-being of S.W.A.N.A. populations. We are dedicated to fostering a supportive network and building a sense of community among those with a shared passion for the S.W.A.N.A. region.	https://swanaucla.my.canva.site/mission	swanaucla@gmail.com	Instagram - @swanaucla
